Kilchoman has Come of Age

Islay's newest, and most westerly distillery, Kilchoman, can now call its spirit "Scotch Whisky".

At a launch ceremony held at the distillery, the new Whisky was revealed to whisky writers and the drinks trade.

Anthony Wills, owner of the distillery and its head distiller, has spent the past three years developing the distillery and also developing relationships with potential distributors for the brand around the world. His efforts have borne fruit, not just in the production of a very good spirit, but also in the fact that the first bottling run of 8,460 bottles sold out at Kilchoman's worldwide distributors within 24 hours!

Another bottling run is scheduled for November.
